RENZ

Project: International law firm, Amsterdam

A large and international law firm with more than 125 lawyers and notaries, chose the prominent infinity building, the former 'ING Shoe', as their new headquarters in Amsterdam.

Before moving in spring 2016, the various floors were renovated and restored. DZAP architects in Naarden/Amsterdam took on the complete planning. The company puts great emphasis on transparency and direct communication. The aim was to create a bright and open space - an inspiring and representative working environment.

The interior design consists of a modern and high quality equipment. For the meeting and conference rooms for up to 28 people they decided for the flexible and elegant conference table program TALK from Renz.
